

THE CHALLENGE OF INTEGRATING HEALTH AND SOCIAL CARE

How can we help?

LOCAL PARTNERSHIPS

Strong and trusting relationships between public agencies are fundamental to using public resources in the most efficient and effective ways. By creating shared vision, coherent strategies, robust and achievable plans, councils, the NHS and other public bodies can overcome the complexity of developing a new model of health and social care.

The challenge is to create a plan that is sustainable, affordable, responds effectively to the needs of local communities, and delivers the outcomes they require.

How can we help?

We can support you with the complex processes and mechanisms required to develop and deliver a system that will be fit for the future. We offer a wide range of skills and experience that include:

We have used this expertise to help a wide range of councils and other public and third sector organisations to help deliver solutions to meet these challenges.

Better Care Fund National Support Programme:

Local Partnerships provides a range of support to local areas with their Better Care Fund Plans as part of the national Better Care Fund Support Programme.

Metropolitan Council within a large Combined Authority:

fundamental review of their Care strategy. We undertook a review of their social care costs, benchmarked these with other councils and reviewed current developments across the care home sector. This culminated in recommendations on a revised strategy.

Large County Council:

an Assurance Review of a county-wide transformation programme of adult social care. This aimed to integrate services more closely with health and stimulate market delivery of innovative, integrated solutions to health and social care.
